Basic Qualification Requirement:

Specialized Experience:

Serves as a systems acquisition manager and advises higher level management on all matters relating to one or more specifically assigned systems. Provide direction, assistance, and support for all operations and activities under the authority of the PM. Relieves the PM of detailed planning related to projects and systems acquisition programs that are varied and complex. Integrates and applies a number of disciplines, using a matrix team of functional experts, including engineering, logistics, product assurance, contracting, and resource management. The incumbent coordinates a wide variety of projects and taskings relating these acquisition programs to the different functions in the life cycle phases to include but not limited to planning, developing, testing, contracting, producing, providing acquisition logistics support, and disposing of a given weapon system.

This definition of specialized experience is typical of work performed at the next lower grade/level position in the federal service (GS-11/NH-02).

Some federal jobs allow you to substitute your education for the required experience in order to qualify. For this position, you must meet the qualification requirement using experience alone--no substitution of education for experience is permitted.

Major Duties:

Extensive organizational and acquisition knowledge of the programs/projects and systems acquisition process under the direction of the PM, the incumbent analyzes assigned portions of the program guidance received from higher headquarters. Performs broad and complex studies and analyses across organizational and functional lines on a variety of projects, issues and problem cases. Tasks, directs, and coordinates with other internal and external organizations and offices engaged in the development and implementation of plans and objectives to assure that actions are in keeping with the PMs management direction. Advises on assigned systems to lateral organizational elements, higher level management and, when required, foreign Governments on activities concerning assigned systems and missions. Maintains liaison with user organizations, test agencies and facilities, and higher-level headquarters. Conducts conferences to obtain agreements concerning acceptability of the current or envisioned product in relation to current military characteristics and what may be producible and supportable later in the product life cycle. Develops plans and objectives for assigned systems acquisition projects. Ensures that the final acquisition strategy incorporates all product life cycle requirements including requirements determination, statutory/regulatory requirements, engineering evaluations, design and prototype development, test, logistics support, and follow-on evaluation/product improvement. Represents the Assistant Project Manager at conferences or meetings with representatives of AMC, HQDA, other services, foreign countries and private industry, relative to the acquisition strategy for assigned systems. Maintains a continuous liaison with concerned personnel to fully coordinate pertinent information relative to assigned systems. Visits supporting installations, private industry, and foreign countries to provide technical direction, advice and assistance as required.
