

Chapter 3

Qualifications for and duties of specific officer military occupations

3-1. General

This chapter provides qualifications for and duties of specific officer military occupations and grade standards for officer positions in authorization documents per policy established in AR 611-1.

3-2. Specifications for officer military occupational codes

This chapter contains specifications for each of the occupational codes developed and approved for officer classification. These specifications are to be used by classification officials, personnel managers, manpower managers, individual warrant officers, potential applicants for appointment, and their commanders, to determine in broad terms, the knowledge, skills and duties normally associated with each officer occupation.

3-3. Performance standards

Each duty position is unique and each supervisor established performance standards which must be considered and met by individual officers. Further, there is no intent to imply that each position which has been established and classified in a officer MOS must contain all of the duties included in the following specifications. No attempt has been made in this pamphlet to include every skill requirement or duty performed within these occupations.

Cyber Warfare Officers deliver effects in and through cyberspace that manifest in cyberspace or in one or more of the other domains designed to deny, degrade, disrupt, destroy, or manipulate adversary activities or operations. The 17A plans, integrates, and synchronizes CO with other lethal and nonlethal actions to enable commanders to mass effects and gain advantages in the cyberspace domain, EMS battlespace, and across other domains during MDO in support of ULO. a. Branch description. The Armor Branch is a command centric branch that prepares officers to command combined arms formations across the full spectrum of military operations. The Armor Branch serves two primary functions in support of unified land operations; provide combined arms formations the capability to close with and destroy the enemy using fire, maneuver, and shock effect and provide Cavalry formations the capabilities to perform reconnaissance and security during combined arms operations.

b. Branch qualifications. Must complete Armor Basic Officer Leader Course (ABOLC) to be branch qualified in AOC 19A. Officers submitting a Voluntary Transfer Incentive Program (VTIP) packet into AOC 19A must be able to attend ABOLC and complete 12 months of Tank or Scout platoon leader time prior to attendance at the Maneuver Captains Career Course. The Chief of Armor is the approval authority for all AOC 19A waivers. Address waiver requests to: Chief of Armor, US Army Armor School, ATTN: ATZK-AR, 1 Karker St, Fort Moore, GA 31905.

c. Armor (19A).

(1) Description of duties. Performs in Tank and Cavalry leadership and staff positions which require skills involving general armor field knowledge.

(2) Special qualifications. Armor officers still in possession of legacy AOCs 19B and 19C do not require additional training to become 19A.

(3) Unique duty positions. None.

d. Armor, 2LT/1LT. The professional development objective for this phase of an officer's career is to develop the requisite Armor branch skills, knowledge and attributes. The focus of the Armor lieutenant is on the development of Armor and Cavalry tactical and technical warfighting skills and the utilization of these skills in an operational assignment. Armor lieutenants assigned to Cavalry Squadrons will attend the Army Reconnaissance Course.

e. Armor, Captain. The professional development objective for this phase of an officer's career is to develop mounted maneuver officers who have exhibited leadership skills as a company commander and staff officer and who have rounded out their knowledge through successfully completing one or more assignments in the generating force. Armor captains who have served in both operational and generating force positions have honed their tactical skills and expanded their capabilities through their functional assignment. The Armor Branch wants to develop captains with operational expertise and who are prepared to provide significant contributions to the generating force. Armor Captains should attend the Cavalry Leader Course in conjunction with the Captains Career Course.

f. Armor, Major. The professional development objective for this phase of an officer's career is to expand the officer's mounted maneuver tactical and technical experience and continue to develop Soldier as a combined arms warrior and leader with a comprehensive understanding of combined arms warfare in a joint and expeditionary environment. Additionally, through a series of operational staff and generating force functional assignments, the Armor major continues to increase Soldier's contribution to the institutional Army and Soldier's understanding of how the Army operates. The key is to provide the Armor major with the tools that prepare Soldier for future battalion command and for increasingly complex generating force assignments. Armor Majors should attend the Cavalry elective during attendance at Intermediate Leadership Education.

g. Armor, LTC. The professional development objective for this phase of an officer's career is demonstrated excellence in tactical skills, technical proficiency and the ability to lead, train, motivate and care for Soldiers in both the staff and command environments. An Armor officer's opportunity to serve in the operational force will decrease as Soldier increases in rank and the percentage of generating force positions increases. The officer's previous assignments prepare Soldier's for expanded roles in the generating force positions of increasing responsibility.

h. Armor, COL. The professional development objective for this phase of an officer's career is sustainment of warfighting, training and staff skill, along with utilization of leadership, managerial and executive talents. The majority of strategic level leaders in the Army are colonels. Colonels are expected to be multi-skilled leaders — strategic and creative thinkers; builders of leaders and teams; competent full spectrum warfighters; skilled in governance, statesmanship, and diplomacy; and understand cultural context and work effectively across it.

(6) Branch Transfer. All Components. All Officers requesting branch transfer into AOC 19A must attend 19A Armor Basic Officer Leader-Branch (ABOLC) conducted under the auspices of the U.S. Army Armor School to be awarded AOC 19A. Those Officers must serve in a Platoon Leader position for 1 year prior to attending Maneuver Captain Career Course (MCCC). The exception to this policy will be on a case by case basis for a CPT or MAJ. These Officers must submit a branch transfer request to the Chief of Armor for approval. The proponent will review the Officers military education, past duty and leadership assignments. Review of the Officers previous leadership assignments and tactical and technical knowledge of mounted operations will determine branch transfer eligibility. These Officers must have a follow on Cavalry Leaders Course (CLC) as there ILE elective.

a. Branch description. The Veterinary Corps (VC) is a unique branch of the Army organized under the AMEDD. It is composed of officers who are graduates of a college of veterinary medicine accredited by the Council of Education of the American Veterinary Medical Association. The VC encompasses those positions filled by officers in which the knowledge and skills required and the services performed are associated with the health and welfare of animals, prevention of human illness from food or animal sources (zoonotic diseases), safety and defense of subsistence, and experimental and comparative biomedical research involving animals. The Army is the executive agent for worldwide military veterinary services. As such, Army veterinarians are assigned and located throughout the world performing missions that require veterinary expertise and knowledge for all services and agencies. To meet requirements, there are six veterinary areas of concentration (AOC). All newly appointed VC officers who have not had postdoctoral education or training are designated Field Veterinary Service (64A) officers. With further experience and training, the Field Veterinary Service officer will acquire an advanced specialty designation in veterinary preventive medicine (64B), veterinary laboratory animal medicine (64C), veterinary pathology (64D), veterinary biomedical scientist (64E), or veterinary clinical medicine (64F). Each AOC has a specific consultant that advises the Corps Chief and TSG on their area of concentration.

b. Branch qualification. To practice veterinary medicine, a Veterinary Corps officer (VCO) must possess both an appropriate degree and a current State license. Degrees can be either a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (DVM) or a Veterinary Medical Doctor (VMD) degree from a veterinary college accredited by the Council on Education of the American Veterinary Medical Association. VCOs must have a permanent, unrestricted license to practice veterinary medicine in one of the United States, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, or a U.S. territory. Various AOCs require board certification or successful completion of a PhD appropriate to the AOC. Reserve Component (RC) officers' development objectives and qualifications closely parallel those planned for their Active Component (AC) counterparts. Even though geographical considerations limit some RC officers, all should strive for institutional training, operational assignments and self-development that yields the same officer developmental opportunities as their AC counterparts. The military education requirements for RC officers can be found in AR 135-155. DA Pam 600-4 provides guidance on leader development, career management, education and training, and promotions for both AC and RC AMEDD officers.

EOD officers have received specialized training to address explosive hazards during both peacetime and wartime. EOD officers are trained and equipped to perform render safe procedures (RSP) on nuclear, biological, chemical, conventional munitions, and improvised explosives devices. EOD officers provide a unique and critical service to the Army, Unified Land Partners, and defense support of civil authorities. EOD officers plan, develop, and integrate EOD operations for all types of contingency operations. These officers advise, integrate, and execute the “render safe” operations of chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear, and explosive ordnance disposal (CBRNE) functions stemming from threats posed by unexploded ordnance (UXO), improvised explosive devices (IED), and weapons of mass destruction (WMD). These officers lead, manage, plan, and direct activities and organizations concerned with identification, location, rendering safe, handling, removal, and disposal of U.S. and foreign unexploded conventional, nuclear, and chemical munitions and IEDs. Additionally, EOD officers provide support/protection to the President of the United States, senior American officials, military and foreign dignitaries, and support intelligence activities through analysis of foreign munitions, technical and biometric exploitation of IEDs, and perform the forensic analysis of post-blast explosive materials.

Integrates the functions of field services, force health protection, maintenance, ammunition, supply, and transportation. Exploits the various aspects of an agile logistics force when planning and executing operations. Know sustainment unit capabilities and employment methods. Provide relevant sustainment information to the commander in clear terms, enabling the commander to rapidly visualize, describe, and direct operations. Translate information on status and location of resources into the impact on combat effectiveness in the present and near future using current and emerging information technology. This branch is not an accession branch. Lieutenants accessioned into the Army as Ordnance, Quartermaster, or Transportation officers become Logistics branch officers after completion of the Combined Logistics Captains Career Course (CLC3). Officers in the Reserve Component are appointed into the Logistics branch after completion of any logistics Reserve Component-Captains Career Course (RC-CCC).

b. Branch qualification. DA Pam 600-3, chapter 35, lists qualification requirements for entry into and professional development within the Logistics branch. Officers must possess an area of concentration (AOC) from the Ordnance, Quartermaster, or Transportation branches prior to induction into the Logistics branch. (2) Due to the Title 32 requirements to be federally recognized in a branch, the National Guard may consider all CPT 90A-coded positions as functional area positions. This allows for lieutenants to be promoted to captain at the appropriate time and not be hindered by the extended time for completion of RC-CCC.

(3) Logistics branch officers possessing the Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) specialty of 89E must sign a volunteer statement accepting duty as an EOD officer. Due to the unique nature of this specialty, officers are utilized primarily in 89E duty positions, and when not utilized in AOC 89E, will be utilized in 90A91 duty positions. Unless EOD officers revoke their volunteer statement, 89E will be designated as the primary AOC, with 91A as the secondary AOC; if an EOD officer revokes their volunteer statement, he/she will be immediately assigned a primary AOC of 90A00 and managed as such.
