

About Us

Army Counterintelligence Command (ACIC) is in a daily, multi-domain fight against foreign intelligence entities (FIE) worldwide. ACIC supports the Army in competition, crisis, and conflict with the authorities and assets to protect the Army's modernization efforts, defense critical infrastructure, and support priority Secretary of the Army and theater requirements. ACIC is the premier and only U.S. Army element - one of four members of the Intelligence Community - capable of executing the full extent of counterintelligence (CI) authorities and activities: investigations, collection, operations, analysis and production, and functional services.

COUNTERINTELLIGENCE AGENT - 35L

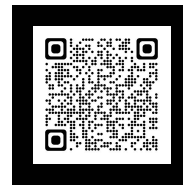

Mission

Army Counterintelligence Command conducts global counterintelligence against U.S. adversaries to protect the U.S. Army and the Department of Defense.

CI SPECIAL AGENTS

Counterintelligence special agents conduct investigations, collect and process forensic and physical evidence to identify and detect foreign intelligence and international terrorist threats, and plan the appropriate countermeasures to neutralize them.

More Information :

Website :

<https://www.goarmy.com/careers-and-jobs/career-match/signal-intelligence/languages-code/35l-counterintelligence-agent.html>

Website :

Active-Duty Applicants: <https://ikn.army.mil/apps/IKNHostedWebsites/CIRecruiting>

UNITED STATES ARMY
COUNTERINTELLIGENCE COMMAND

PROTECT THE FORCE EXPLOIT THE ENEMY

<https://www.army.mil/ACIC/>

What We Do

Through its regional headquarters, battalions, local field offices, and resident agencies, ACIC provides Army senior leaders, commanders and organizations with understanding of the FIE threat, CI support capabilities, CI reporting requirements, and other CI services as required. ACIC's CI special agents conduct covering agent program (CAP) activities, national security investigations, CI collection activities, CI operations, CI surveillance, technical surveillance countermeasures (TSCM), CI digital threat investigator (CDTI) activities, and CI-scope polygraph examinations.

Who We Are

Established in December 2021, ACIC was created from the former 902nd Military Intelligence Group and the U.S. Army Intelligence and Security Command's (INSCOM) G2X staff element (Counterintelligence and Human Intelligence Division). The establishment of ACIC as a one-star command with a reconfigured flattened structure has improved systems and processes, resulting in a flat, fast, and focused CI force aggressively protecting Army, DOD, and U.S. equities and interests globally.

Report

If you have information that may be of interest to U.S. Army Counterintelligence Command, please submit an iSALUTE Suspicious Activity Report or call 1-800-CALLSPY.

WHAT TO REPORT

Insider Threat

Espionage

Terrorism

Sabotage

Surveillance

Suspicious Contact

Security Compromise

Sedition

Treason
Subversion

1-800-CALLSPY

To learn more about joining, visit:
<https://www.goarmy.com/careers-and-jobs/career-match/signal-intelligence/languages-code/351-counterintelligence-agent.html>