U.S. Army 409th Contracting Support Brigade

Mrs. Emily Feeheley
Deputy to the Commander

Ms. Feeheley is a seasoned acquisition professional with two decades of dedicated service to the Federal Government, beginning in 2005 as a Department of Army Intern Contract Specialist at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland. She holds a Master's Degree in Acquisition and Supply Chain Management from the University of Maryland Global Campus, which complements her extensive practical experience.

Throughout her career, Ms. Feeheley has demonstrated expertise in all facets of contracting, from research and development to major weapon systems. Notably, in 2012, she negotiated a pricing schedule for the $2.9B Commercial Information Technology Common Hardware System contract resolving a significant backlog and rapidly awarding over $70M in critical Warfighter requirements through innovative process improvements.

Ms. Feeheley has held key leadership positions with the U.S. Army Contracting Command, Aberdeen Proving Ground (ACC-APG). As Chief of Policy and Operations of the Contract Operations Division, she led initiatives to streamline acquisition processes and improve policy dissemination, and as Chief of the Contracting Office for the Natick Contracting Division, she oversaw a diverse portfolio supporting vital Program Executive Offices and Commands.

In 2019, Ms. Feeheley shared her expertise serving as a Professor of Contract Management with the Defense Acquisition University, specializing in source selection, negotiation, and price/cost analysis. She returned to ACC-APG in 2021 as the Missions Operations Director and then served as the Director of Operations for ACC-APG, where she oversaw the Organization's critical support functions, continuing a career defined by impactful contributions to the Army acquisition workforce.

Currently, Ms. Feeheley is serving as the Deputy to the Commander of the Fightin' 409th Contracting Support Brigade. Here she is focused on enhancing readiness and operational capacity for U.S. and Partner Forces in the European Theater by delivering the power of Army contracting to leverage commercial capability and provide business advice to support sustaining, shaping, and decisive operations in order to maintain a strong Europe.
