

Commanding General's

October 2016

Cybersecurity Awareness Message

CYBERSECURITY AWARENESS MONTH

CYBERSECURITY MESSAGE

1. October marks the 13th annual observance of Cybersecurity Awareness Month. Each year we improve our cyber defense through increased threat awareness, organizational, and individual protection measures. Cyber threats are real and constant. I strongly encourage and reinforce good cyber practices and remain steadfast on the following:

a) Ensure cyber awareness is not just an annual activity. We must always maintain a high level of security and enforce cybersecurity policies.

b) Recognize and report suspicious scams which could potentially steal information or upload malicious software onto the network. Be wary of unsolicited phone calls, visits, and unknown links in email messages.

c) Safeguard Soldiers and Families at home and while traveling. Be smart about Operations Security and protection of Personally Identifiable Information.

2. As part of our observance, leaders at all levels should cover Army Families and Family Readiness Groups under our cybersecurity umbrella. They are vital members of the Army community and play a critical role in protecting information from our adversaries.

3. The Stop, Think, Connect campaign is designed to help individuals, teachers, leaders, and Families stay cyber safe at home, school, and in the workplace. Resources can be found at www.stcguide.com and www.ready.gov/cyber-attack.

4. All commanders must take cyber threats seriously and consistently increase awareness to safeguard Army systems, Army Families and our National Security.

Arctic Tough!

BRYAN R. OWENS
Major General, USA
Commanding

DISTRIBUTION: A